Indianapolis. Ind., June 26.-The entire north central portion of Indiana was visited Wednesday by one of the most disastrous storms that ever swept over the state.

The storm swept sections covering hundreds of miles, extending from Hancock county northwest through the northern portion of Marion county, Hamilton and Boone counties, and doing much damage in Tippecanoe and adjacent counties. Madison county also felt its fury.

Thousands of buildings were razed, tens of thousands of trees were uprooted and now blockade highways, railroads and traction lines. Crops were utterly ruined, causing a loss estimated at nearly $2,000,000, and 50 persons were more or less injured. But two deaths have been reported with authority. That was the killing of James Van Hoy, who was caught in that befell us in the death of Presithe ruins of a collapsed barn near Pendleton, and James Bailey, who was killed by flying timbers at McCords-

The course of the storm was southeast and northwest. Its path was clear across the state. In the ruins left behind are many factories, churches, school-houses and frame residences. The most severe damage was towns in the devastated district is cut off.

At Maxwell, Hancock county, the United States china factory was ruined, all the buildings being destroyed. Seven workmen were injured by being caught beneath the wreck. All will recover.

The New Brothers' flour mill and grain elevators were totally destroyed, and the Friends' church was blown

At Cleveland, six miles southeast of Maxwell, the storm broke as the funeral of Mrs. Mary Earle was being held. The roof of an adjoining house was blown away and a piece of timber was hurled through the side of the house of mourning. It struck ex-County Clerk Sample, breaking his leg. Several others were slightly injured. Outside, three horses hitched to carriages were hurled by the wind against the trees and killed. The hearse was demolished and the horses harnessed to it were injured so that one of them had to be shot. Ernest Hurst and E. Heims were badly hurt by being blown against the side of a house. Seven houses were destroyed and the post office was unroofed and one side blown out. Between Cleveland and Greenfield all the roads are blocked. In that section a heavy hail and rainfall after the wind had spent its fury. Crops are ruined and fields are several inches under water. Several farm houses are unroofed and several fine tracts of timber have been laid waste.

At Wilkinson five people were injured, one perhaps fatally. This was Charles Shepherd, of Red Key. Four houses were destroyed and general havoc created by the wind.

At Stringtown, Mrs. Cicero Hamilton was seriously injured by being caught under the wreck of her house At Fisher's Station three persons were injured, but none fatally. From that place east into Hancock county the whole county has been greatly dam aged. Crops are ruined and fences and farm buildings are down.

East of Anderson, along the line of the railroad, the railroad tracks were obstructed by the fallen poles.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, June 20.-Senate-An isthmian canal, while not yet absolutely assured, is nearer to construction than it ever has been. The senate Thursday by a majority of eight votes adopted the Spooner substitute for the Hepburn Nicaraguan canal bill, the vote on the substitute being 42 to 34. After two amendments to the measure had been adopted, one providing for a commission to supervise the construction of the canal and the other providing for the issuance of Ayers left Monday morning with 88 $130,000,000 of two per cent. gold men. Rend & Co., who have closed bonds to raise money with which to construct the waterway, it was passed by a vote of 67 to 6. The Spooner substitute in brief provides that the president shall select the Panama route if he can obtain a clear title to the Panmittee in Charleston was soliciting ama Canal Co. property, but, otherwise, he shall adopt the Nicaraguan route. The Panama route was considered more desirable by the senate than the Nicaraguan route. The only question left open is the title to the property, and that the president will determine if the house should adopt the senate's amendment to its bill. The senate had some debate over the trouble into which it has gotten with the house over amendments to the army appropriation bill, and finally asked for a conference with the house.

House—The opening day of the week's debate on the Philippine government bill in the house was signalized by a remarkably strong and exhaustive speech by Mr. Cooper (Wis.), chairman of the committee on insular affairs. He spoke for almost three hours and was given close attention by both sides of the house.

Washington, June 21.-Senate-No business of importance was transacted by the senate Friday in open session except to agree to a conference report finally disposing of the military academy appropriation bill. Soon after the disposition of routine business the senate went into executive session and at 3:10 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

House-Debate on the Philippines civil government bill continued in the house from 11 a. m. to 5 p. m., and at a session held at night. The speakers were given close attention, each side enthusiastically applauding its respective orators.

Washington, June 24.--Senate-A motion was entered formally in the senate Monday by Mr. Quay (Pa.) to discharge the committee on territories from further consideration of what is known as the omnibus territorial billa measure to admit as states the territories of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona. Mr. Quay spoke briefly but forcibly in support of his motion. No action was taken on the motion. During the latter part of the session the tend the king's funeral, which include unfinished business, the bill ratifying Andrew D. White and the Marquis De a convention with the Choctaw and Chickasaw Indians, was under discus sion. It was not disposed of.

Washington, June 25.—Senate—The senate Tuesday passed bills creating a national forest reserve in the South ern Appalachian mountains and ratifying the agreement between the Choc taw and Chickasaw Indians of the In dian territory and the United States. The first bill provides for the purchase of 4,000,000 of acres in the Southern Appalachian system at cost not to exceed $10,000,000. The secretary of agriculture is to designate the lands to be purchased and is to take measures to preserve the hardwood forests which they following bills were passed: Authorwith them was thrown several yards izing the president to receive public lands and buildings in the island of Porto Rico for public uses and granting other public lands and buildings to the government of Porto Rico, the provision giving the resident commissioner from Porto Rico to the United States a seat in the house of repre sentatives being eliminated: authorizing the president to appoint Lieut. Commander William P. Randall a commander on the retired list of the navy House-Two notable speeches marked the closing of the general debate on the Philippines civil government bill Tuesday. They were made by Mr. Landis (Ind., rep.), and by Mr. Williams (Miss., dem.), There were big demonstrations after each concluded. The other speakers were Messrs. Ball (Tex.), Jones (Va.), Shaforth (Col.) and Crumpacker (Ind.). The latter closed the general debate for the bill.

Washington, June 26.—Senate—The senate Wednesday disposed for this session of the omnibus statehood question which has been pending for several days. Mr. Beveridge (Ind.) chairman of the committee on territories, announced that a report on the bill before the committee would be made on the third day of the next session. This was satisfactory to Mr. Quay (Pa.), who, after securing an agreement that the committees' report should be the unfinished business on and after the 10th of December until it was disposed of, withdrew his motion to discharge the committee from further consideration of the measure The senate took up the calendar and passed a large number of bills of minor importance. The conference re port on the army appropriation bill was agreed to, thus passing that meas ure and eliminating the friction which has existed between the two houses over it. House-The Philippine civil govern ment bill was thrown open to amend ment in the house. Very slow pro gress was made, only 15 of the 50 pages of the bill being completed. The earlier portion of the day was devoted to consideration of conference reports on the sundry civil army and naval appropriation bills. The house adopted a proposition agreeable to the senate with reference to the disputed items in the army bill and by a vote of 63 to 95 refused to agree to the senate amondments to the naval bill providing for five submarine torpedo boats.

CONFLAGRATION AT DALLAS.

Twenty-Three Residences Destroyed and 100 People Homeless.

Dallas, Tex., June 25.—Twentythree residences were destroyed in East Dallas Tuesday and over 100 people made homeless within two hours. Fireman John Clark was overcome by heat and died Tuesday night. Eight other men and one woman were overcome by the heat and injured otherwise during the progress of the conflagration, but none of them are in a serious condition. The property loss will reach fully $70,000, and the insurance in most cases is very light.

The fire originated in a residence which was being remodeled at Haskell and Simpson avenues. Every piece of fire equipment in the city was called to the scene and a hard fight made to control the blaze which was fanned by a strong south wind.

REGARDING MEDICAL TERMS.

Rules as to Certain Plurals That Are Applicable Also to a Number of Other Words.

How to form the plural of some medical words is a puzzle to many physicians. We have been asked especially as to the proper form of the plural of neuritis, nephritis, etc., and of iris, formula, etc. It seems to us the general rule must be that if they are English words, i. e., writen in Roman and not in italics, they should form the plural just as other English plurals are formed. If they are still foreign words, of course, the plurals must be those commanded by the language whence they come. There is hardly a better proof of the accilmatization than the adoption of the English form of plural, says American Medicine.

If the Latin form is preserved, then we should print the words in italies and use it as little as possible. But in English we are compelled to use nephritis, etc., because there are no other English words descriptive of the facts. Such words are as thoroughly anglicized as they can be. If not, we should use the Greek alphabet in printing them. Why, therefore, preserve the Latin or Greek forms of plurals? Who would say lexica instead of lexicons, factota and ultimata instead of factotums and ultimatums? In the same way we think that chondromas, carcinomas, fibromas, etc., addendums, ovums, erratums, mediums, focuses, funguses, formulas, genuses, stamens, indexes, apparatuses, appendixes, cherubs, seraphs, bandits, criterions, etc., are the proper plural forms. In words ending in -is, the change to -es, in forming the plural, is so well established and so simple that it should not be interfered with.

In this way we have accepted and habitually use analyses, bases, crises, hypotheses, oases, parentheses, theses, like the ring. There is no beginning etc. Why should we not form the plu- to it."-Chicago Post.

rals of our words ending in -itis in the same way, instead of the Greek-itides? The forms neurites, nephrites, etc., seem preferable to neuritides, nephritides, etc. We would prefer frises to irides and iritises to iritides. The objections to -itides are so evident that they need not be discussed, and -itises is scarcely likely to be accepted, although it is perfectly proper and preferable to Military Artists of Malta.

Of all the quaint and varied sights shown to the passing stranger, perhaps there is none more attracive than the officers' quarters in the mainguard of the citadel of Valetta. Long ago some officer, finding the time hang heavy on his hands, and having in him besides a turn for sketching, bethought him to draw upon the bare yellow washed wall of his ungarnished room a picture in colors. The next officer probably thought he could do as well, or beter, and he, too, left his handiwork upon the walls; and as years rolled by there grew up a custom, now firmly established, for every regiment serving in Malta and doing mainguard duty to leave behind a remembrance of itself in the shape of a sketch on the walls, in pencil, chalk or paint. Thus now, instead of plain unlovely walls, exists this quaint irregular patchwork of pictures, well known throughout the services and to those who use this highway to the east .--Navy and Army.

He wished to be poetic, and it seemed to him he had a good simile. As he leaned toward her he produced a ring. "My love for you," he said, "is like this ring. There is no end to it." She examined the ring with interest

It pays to take time for OUT-OF-DOOR SPORTS. The policy of all work and no play is a losing proposition from every view point.

Variety is the law of nature and the man who has not a wholesome pastime is an object of pity. In these days of intense application and high-pressure living the man does not live who can keep up the pace and not vary his mental activity with some kind of diversion. If he holds his nose close to the grindstone and refuses to take any relaxation, he will suffer a loss of force in one direction or another. He cheats himself when he thinks to cheat nature by an unremitting mental concentration along a single line.

As a nation we have mastered the art of working save in one vital particular—WE HAVE NOT YET LEARNED HOW TO

Every man and youth should take at least a half-holiday a week. From the street laborer to the millionaire this rule should not know a single exception.

AND EVERY MAN SHOULD PLAY AS HEARTILY AS HE WORKS. This he is not likely to do unless he takes up some active pastime or sport in which he becomes so completely absorbed that, for the time being, he forgets all else.

It matters little what form of sport he adopts, so long as it commands his entire interest and enthusiasm. Bicycling, golf, baseball, target shooting, hunting, fishing, tennis, fencing-all these are good wholesome diversions.

Personally i regret that the bicycle seems to have fallen into temporary unpopularity, as wheeling is not only a magnificent exercise but affords a wide variety of restful diversion. Target shooting is another pastime which commands the enthusiasm of its devotees and is so absorbing that one can think of nothing else while en-

It is clearly the duty of employers to give their employes a weekly holiday. On the other hand THE EMPLOYE IS UN-DER OBLIGATION TO USE HIS HOLIDAY FOR PURPOSES RECREATION INSTEAD OF FOR PRIVATE DRUDGERY. Parents also should give their boys and girls a fair and regular allowance of playtime, even in cases where the children must contribute to the family support. In short, IT PAYS TO TAKE TIME FOR PLAY, and to ake it regularly.

"Give the man a show!" cried Christopher Waffle, shrilly, springing upon a chair in the office. "Don't act like a lot of hyenas! There's law in this ble sneak from the other side of the town and Waffle knows how to deal it out!"

"Who shall guard the prisoner?" sked Guy. "Mr. Pedro Smith?"

Sampson pushed up the stairs with slacrity, took the key from Guy's hand and proceeded at once to his post. When a'll the others were on the office floor a debate as to the funishment which should be meted out to Col. Dingle was at once be-

Dingle would suffer aufficient punisument if he were set astride a pole and ridden out of town. There was but one point on which the agreement was anything like bethe unanimous, and that was that Dingle, before he was dealt with in any manner whatever, should go down on his knees to Col. Keever and implore his pardon.

Guy was against this and so was Waffle, and, of course, Bill Comfort. Arguments pro and con came fast and furious and an hour passed without bringing the dissenting factions any closer together than they were at first. Misunderstandings began to crop out and more than one harsh

CHAPTER V.

The citizens of Concord were stupified. That weathervane was a symbol of their defiance of the other town and to have the hated Dingle come brazenly among them, insult their leader in a peculiarly irritating manner, escape mysteriously while they were wrangling over the method of his punishment, and flee with the grotesque galvanized figure waving over his head was enough to paralyze the most rabid partizan.

Christopher Waffle was a Concord man to the marrow of his bones; but he had no love for Col. Keever-possibly because the Colonel had once overcharged him for a threshing "ad." Nor had Waffle admired the Colonel's handiwork as exemplified in the weathervane. The judge had said that he was coarse and brutally insolent and that something would happen on account of it for which they would be sorry. The Murder at Fordham&

By JOHN H. RAFTERY.

THE night clerk made a long argument to the effect that nearly every celebrated murder mystery had been solved at last, but old Barney Patton, the house detective, refused to be convinced.

"Your theory that 'murder will out' may be all right in what you call celebrated crimes," said the old fellow, "but my experience is that it won't wash as regards the numberless minor cases that are neither never solved or in which the culprit is never punished. And it isn't always the fault of the police, either. They may be morally and most reasonably certain of the guilt of a man or a woman and yet be utterly unable to prove it to the satisfaction of a jury. There are so many obstacles in the form of court practice, so many complicated hindrances in the technicalities of courts, that, to me, the wonder is, so many criminals are

"I remember the first case I ever worked on and what a disappointment it was to find myself balked at last by the fixed requirements of that judicial machinery that is supposed to be inexorable in the pursuit of all wrong-doers. I was sent up from the city to the town of Fordham, which had just been shocked by a rather singular midnight murder. The victim was a married woman named Celia Fordyce, who had recently moved into the neighborhood and was living in a pretty two-story cottage at the edge of town, with her husband and their only child, a daughter. It seems that he had been detained till a late bour at his store, and, having walked homeward, was within a block of his cottage when he heard cries of murder, and, running forward, saw Bertha, his daughter, in her nightgown, standing in the front veranda screaming for help.

"She excitedly exclaimed that a burglar must have gotten into the house and killed Mrs. Fordyce while she slept. It was nearly ten o'clock that morning when I reached the house, glad to find that the authorities of Fordham had taken charge of the place and that the house and its contents had been kept in the exact condition prevailing during the night of the crime. I learned that Mrs. Fordyce's body had been found on the floor of the back parlor nearly six feet from the bed which she had occupied; that a Winchester rifle, the muzzle in her hand had been found beside the body. An examination of the body and of the room showed that two shots had been fired-both from the rifle. One lodged in the woodwork of the bed, just above the pillow, and the other had passed through the woman's heart, and was found under the always stood in the closet of the room occupied by himself and his wife. That since his coming to Fordham, it had never been out of its leather case. It was evident that the murderer had found the weapon, taken it out of its case and turned it upon the awakening woman. Was there another weapon in the house? There had been, he said a pistol which was always kept loaded under his or his wife's pillow. Where was it? Nobody knew. I questioned Miss Bertha, who was a demure, rather comely girl of perhaps 17. She had been asleep in her room, which was the hall room on the second floor. The first shot had awakened her and she remembered sitting up in bed to listen. Hearing no further disturbance, but quite frightened, she got up and bolted her door on the inside. Then she heard a second shot and a moment later the sound as of a body falling, then a rush of footsteps up the carpeted stair and back through the hall leading the length of the house. It had been some minutes, she thought, before she gained courage to light the gas. Then she called down over the balustrade, but, getting no answer, came into the hall, lighting each gas jet as she went, till she was in the reception hall downstairs. From there she saw her mother, face-down, on the floor. went out on the varanda and began to scream. Then her father had come running. That was all either Fordyce or his daughter could tell about the matter.

. "I went back through the upstair hal. and found the window at the end raised about two feet. I looked out and saw kitchen below a leather rifle case. Then I searched the whole house from the missing pistol. No robbery had money, which was tucked carelessly which it is trimmed. into an old, painted or gilded gourd on the dresser. I was puzzled about the pistol's disappearance, but concluded that the robber had secured that first, had probably awakened Mrs. Fordyce in that way and made off after the murder with the revolver in his pockthe pistol, the intruder had found time there. or cause to uncase the rifle and use it gun, I couldn't figure out. That robbery had been the motive, I didn't doubt for an instant, but when I examined the ground about the cottage. rain of the night before, I could find no trace of the escaping house-breaker. locked except that one window, and it | cel of the whole. seemed as plain as day that the murderer must have climbed in over the kitchen roof and out by the same route. What had prompted him to carry the rifle case that far? How had he got from the roof of the summmer kitchen to the distant back fence without leaving a print of his footsteps? There was neither pavement nor walk in the yard, for the cottage was new and the bare clay about it was soft and untrodden. At either side of the cottage was a bare area at least 25 feet wide. There were no footprints anywhere. Where was the pistol? I swerched that house a dozen times that day, even unfolding the clean linen in the closets and rummaging in Bertha's trunk, to the great anger of her grief-stricken father. But it was not to be found. I spent the night proving to my own satisfaction that Fordyce had actually been at his store till half an hour before the murder must have occurred. Nobody knew much about the family. He had come with his wife six months before and had bought the Ferris' stove and tinware business. He seemed to be a fine man, a trifle younger than

"The women who had met her all spoke well of Mrs. Fordyce. Bertha, the daughter, had come home from boarding school at Ogdensburg in May. It was about June 10 that the murder occurred. Now, after finding out as much as I could, I made up my mind, and it cost me many a twinge to do so, I made up my mind that Bertha had killed her own mother! It was such a preposterous, monstraus suspicion that I was ashamed of it myself and, of course, dared not mention it to anyone else, at least, until I had some sound evidence. She was apparently a very emotional, cultivated young gir and I couldn't think of the least shadow of motive sufficient to urge her to so hateful and unnatural a crime, but the facts, few but adamantine, told me, in spite of myself, that she had done it. Now in a case like that, where the evidence is wholly circumstantial and at that, far from final, it is absolutely necessary to find or supply a motive. I was so sure of my theory that I spent a week at the Ogdensburg school trying to find out all about Bertha, her disposition, vagaries, regard for her home and her mother. Everything was favorable to the girl. There was not a hint of criticism upon which I might fasten the thread of justification for my suspicion. I went suddenly back to Fordham and searched the Fordyce house again. I don't know what moved me to it, but I got out on the tin roof, and neticing a warped place where the metal had raised about an inch from the level, I thrust in my hand and pulled out the missing pistol that had been stolen from under his wife, but apparently happy.

Fordyce's pillow! "Meanwhile the coroner's jury had laid the crime at the door of "party or parties unknown" and, certain as I felt that this strange girl must have abstracted her parents' weapon in the daytime or perhaps during a previous night, and had gone about the murder with premeditated and horrible coolness, I was powerless to reopen the case, for I knew that, unless I could supply a reasonable motive for the incredible crime, I would be laughed at. So I passed up the whole matter.

"Never did anything about it?" wondered the night clerk.

"No. Never heard of the Fordyces again till two years ago. I was visiting an old sister of mine in Boston. I was sitting on the front stoop one summer evening when I saw Fordyce and his daughter pass, arm in arm. I asked my sister if she knew them and when fruit is served at the other two she said their name was Ballard, that she was a girl. I went over to see Mrs. Kelly that evening and she said that Ballard's 'real name' was Fordyce, but that he had changed it perhaps on account of his first wife's murder up at Fordham.

"And who is this young woman living with him? Is she his daughter?" "'No,' said Mrs. Kelly, 'she's his step-daughter. You see he married a widow named Celia something, when her child was about 12 years old. The mother was killed somehowlby a burglar, I believe, and a couple of years afterward he turns in and marries the

SECRETS OF BEAUTY CULTURE

Persistence in Exercise Is One of the Prerequisites, Says One Who Knows.

And a word to those who long to be "stylish." The wish is not as frivolous it is the right of every woman to be becomingly gowned; she owes it to her associates no less than to herself; and from a sartorial point of view, much is in favor of the physically perfected woman. The better proportioned the figure, the more erect the carriage, so much the more artistically simple may be the garments.

Breathing we will consider at another time. Sufficient now to say that it is astonishing, even appalling, how little is known on this vitally important subject, says Alberti, in Truth: the Woman's Forum.

If a girl has been so fortunate as to receive physical education while she is young, so much the better. She then absorbs the instruction just as she does lessons in any other branch of her education, without any clear appreciation of its future benefit; later she learns that true physical culture means culture in the broadest sense; that it is not the development of a few forceful muscles, but the harmonious development of mind and body. aiming to give the highest expression to the spirit that is within her. We who are older, to whom the need of a better body, a clearer mind and a finer soul has but lately been felt, must first get over (what is to many a bete noir) the initial effort. Physical culture exercises are simple and brief. The one essential is not time or relaxation, but persistency. In time, a short time, troublesome effort becomes a fascinating habit, and with strength and grace of body comes a corresponding mental attitude. We realize how closely mind and matter are allied and that soul pervades all. Indeed, bodily training should go hand in hand with the moral and mental growth of man or

To Preserve, Purify, and Beautify the Skin, Hands, and Hair Nothing Equals

MILLIONS of WOMEN Use CUTICURA SOAP, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chatings, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and inflammations, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. DLD PEOPLE

Do not always receive the sympathy and attention which they deserve. Their ailments are regarded as purely imaginary, or natural and unavoidable at their time of life. Disease and infirmity should not always be associated with old age. The eye of the gray haired grandsire may be as bright and the complexion as fair as any of his younger and more vigorous companions.

Good Blood is the secret of healthy old age, for it regulates and controls every part of the body, strengthens the nerves, makes the muscles elastic and supple, the bones strong and the flesh firm; but when this life fluid is polluted or poisoned and loses its nutritive, health sustaining elements, then there is a rapid decline of the vital powers, resulting in premature old age and disease. Any derangement of the blood quickly shows itself in an ulcer, sore, wart, tumor or some other troublesome growth upon the body, and rheumatic and neuralgic pains become almost constant, accompanied with poor digestion and cold extremities.

S. S. S. being purely vegetable, is the safest and best blood purifier for old people. It does not shock or hurt the system like the strong mineral remedies, but gently and thoroughly cleanses the blood and stimulates the debilitated organs, when all bodily ailments disappear. S. S. S. is just such a tonic as old people need to improve a weak digestion and tone up the Stomach. If there is any hereditary taint, or the remains of some disease contracted in early life, S. S. S. will search it out and remove every vestige of it from the system.
